

Computer networks communicate through standard packet protocols.